

OTTIMINO

ZINFANITY 2007 SONOMA COUNTY ZINFANDEL

"Single-vineyard wines are the ultimate in quality when the vineyard and the vintage are right. There's an equally valid proposition for combining vineyards: the infinite flexibility afforded by blending often results in wine of great elegance, richness, and individuality. Zinfanity is Ottimino's realization of that possibility."

-Ottimino winemaker, William Knuttel

Our second vintage of Zinfanity Sonoma County Zinfandel again utilizes the magic of blending to achieve a beautifully balanced and densely structured wine. The 2007 Zinfanity has a foundation built from the 50 year old vines in Biglieri Vineyard at the southern edge of Dry Creek Valley, and from our fabulously stressed 75 year old vines in Von Weidlich Vineyard in Russian River Valley. Some Bradford Mountain selection Zin from Ottimino Vineyard, our home ranch, augmented this base.

To these finely nuanced Zins we added dense hillside fruit from the Vogensen and Piccetti ranches in Dry Creek Valley's northwest hills, and from the Somers vineyard on the southeast hillsides--Zinfandel that always displays quintessential varietal character. Finally, we added Petite Sirah from Doug Rafanelli's hillside vines to enhance the density and structure of the blend. The lots were aged separately for about ten months, then fashioned into Zinfanity and racked to French oak for an additional twelve months of barrel aging!

All of the lots in the blend were made in virtually the same fashion as Ottimino's single-vineyard Zinfandels: cold-extraction of gently crushed fruit, lengthy fermentation with vigorous pumpovers, extended maceration, aging in French oak, quarterly racking—and minimal intervention. Except, of course, there are copious rounds of blend trials required to make the best Zinfanity possible!

TASTING NOTES:

Dense aromas of spicy black plum, ripe cherry, blackberry and bramble are lifted by notes of creamy oak. Flavors follow on, with the entry adding hints of raspberry and cassis. Dense, juicy tannins flesh out the mid-palate, which leads to a firm finish of great length and persistence. The 2007 Zinfanity displays excellent balance, allowing great versatility in food pairing, and, like all wines well-crafted in claret style, will further develop with extended cellar aging.
